A Message from the President

By Ted Feit

The biggest day in the 2020 Southern California fishing scene so far was June 14th: it's the day all of the landings were opened up and the fleet could go fishing again! The boats had been shut down as a response to Covid-19 and were sustaining a crippling financial loss. Anglers and boat and landing operators did a great job in sending letters to state and county officials. I would encourage everyone to go fishing now as much as they can to support recreational Sportfishing.

However, Covid-19 is still with us and we must adapt for the time being to the new normal. The responses of the boats are all different and the angler should contact the boat to find out their specific provisions. As a rule, masks will be required, loads will be limited to 60% of capacity, and there will be 6 feet of rail space between anglers. The crew will sanitize common spaces in the galley and boat interior. On overnight and longer trips, fisherman should bring their own sleeping bags (the crew will sanitize the bank pads between trips).

The angler can minimize risk with a few additional steps. Bring hand sanitizers and your own sanitizing spray. Don't mingle and congregate for too long and keep the windows partly open in the galleys and interior rooms. On overnight and longer trips you might want to consider bringing a small personal fan and use it to blow air away from your face while sleeping. When sleeping in cabins, leave the door to the cabin partly open. The best mask to bring is a FDA registered high quality N95 mask. This type of mask has at least 95% filtration efficiency against non-aerosol based particles and aerosols. While not available on Amazon, I was pleased to find that they can be ordered directly from an American company based in Santa Ana at canopusgroup.us. The price is not too expensive: $19 for two plus shipping. I have them and find that they are extremely comfortable to wear.

I encountered the "new normal" by fishing on the Coral Sea out of Santa Barbara. At the dock, the passengers were required to attest that they did not have a fever or recent contact with Covid-19 carriers. Galley orders were taken by the crew and brought to you on deck. The fish you caught were placed in your bag by the crew. The anglers were good about wearing masks and social distancing. It was too windy to go out to the islands, so we went up the coast. I stayed in the bow most of the trip with my fellow bow mates. There was a scratchy bite for middling size rock fish, but it was great to be out on the water again.

Stay safe and fish!

LARRC Annual Earl Warren Kids Trip

Dear Kids Trip Volunteers,

With all the uncertainty, turmoil, and fear surrounding the Coronavirus scare; it is with a heavy heart, I need to inform you that the LARRC Annual Earl Warren Kids Fishing Trip, scheduled for July 13, 2020, has been cancelled.

The LA Rod and Reel Club has been sponsoring this "higher purpose" event for 70 years. Many of you have helped with this event numerous times over the years.

The Club very much appreciates your willingness to step up and be of service, to the at risk kids, in our Southern California community. It is our hope and prayer that we will be able to resume this very worthwhile endeavor in July 2021.

Until then, stay healthy, have some fun and find ways to go fishing.

Sincerely,

Richard Stone, Kids Trip Chairman

Special Thanks to John Ballotti

Here's the Road Sign:

"Drive Slowly, Fish Crossing Speed limit 40."

This happens near the Skokomish River, Shelton, Washington, every year when the river floods. The salmon take short cuts and swim across the road to go upstream to spawn.

YESTERYEAR

By Mike Godfrey

As I was looking through pictures from "yesteryear" in my computer files, I came across the picture of the largest dorado I ever caught. This fish was in excess of 40 lbs and I caught it just off the beach in Loreto, Mexico (circa 1985-1990). As an inexperienced angler, I was using a jig master with no customized gearing and 15 lbs monofilament. My battle with this fish took about 35 minutes in the panga (with the panguero yelling at me to reel harder). I just took my time because I didn't want to lose this fish. The jig master worked well enough for me to eventually land this dorado.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF BERT SERDEN

By Barry Cohn

My great friend Bert Serden passed away this month. He was 95 years young.

Bert met his soon to be wife Meg, shortly after being released from the army at the end of WWII. Meg was the love of his life. They were about to celebrate their 68th wedding anniversary! They have four wonderful children, numerous grandchildren and five great grandkids by the last count. The Serden clan is strong and loving. Bert and Meg worked really hard to make it this way.

Bert had a huge number of friends, many of which I met at their annual New Year's Day open house. This was a continuous event, going back 50 years or so.

I met Bert in 1984. It was at the Velvet Turtle in West Los Angeles at a meeting of the WLA Rod & Reel Club. My family and career had developed to the point where I could start fishing again, after a ten-year hiatus. I read in the Western Outdoor News that WLA would be having its monthly meeting and for further information to call Bert Serden. I did, and he invited me to attend. The night of the meeting, I walked into a room full of strangers and had no idea what to expect. Bert immediately came up to me, put his arm around my shoulders and said "Come on in kid. How about a scotch?" I will never forget this kind and warming greeting.

We quickly became friends and then the best of friends. And, of course, there was the fishing. We fished up and down the California coast., Alaska, Vancouver, Mexico, Belize, Costa Rica and the Florida Keys. These trips were too numerous to to count, but I remember them all.

In addition to being a great friend and the best fishing buddy ever, he was a mentor to me. And by his example, he gave me a great gift--he showed me how to grow older, without ever growing old.

I miss you Bert now and forever.

Four Corners Fly Fishing

By Barry Cohn

I was looking at some old photos, as many of us are now doing in this C-19 era. I came across these vintage pics of me back when I was into fly-fishing. These were taken in the famous Four Corners region where Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Arizona all meet. The first two were on the San Juan River in New Mexico and the others were on the Dolores River in Colorado. This was in 1989. I barely recognize myself! Good memories!!

Covid-isms

2019: You see a man in a store wearing a mask and think you are in danger.

2020: you see a man in a store not wearing a mask in a store and think you are in danger.

Until further notice the days of the week are now called Thisday, Thatday, Otherday, Someday, Yesterday, Today and Nextday!

Just asked a 6-year-old if he understands why there is no school. He said yes because they are out of toilet paper.

After years of wanting to thoroughly clean my home but lacking the time, this week I discovered that wasn't the reason.

If you thought toilet paper was crazy ... just wait until 300 million people all want a haircut appointment.

2020 is a unique Leap Year. It has 29 days in February, 300 days in March and 5 years in April.

Wearing a mask inside your home is now highly recommended. Not so much to prevent COVID-19 but to stop eating.

This cleaning with alcohol is total BS. NOTHING gets done after that first bottle.

Kinda' starting to understand why pets try to run out of the house when the door opens.

My Mom always told me I wouldn't accomplish anything by laying in the bed all day, but look at me now! I'm saving the world!

Whoever owes you money, go to their house now. They should be home.

Is your car getting 3 weeks per gallon now? Mine is.

It's like being 16 again, gas is cheap and I'm grounded.

Low gas prices during the lockdown is like a bald man winning a hairbrush.

In a month, 88% of blondes will disappear from the earth.

All those grandparents who are missing their grandkids now—once this is over you can have them for a month.

The spread of COVID-19 is based on two factors.

1. How dense the population is.
2. How dense the population is.

And just like that, our pastor became a televangelist.

Can we uninstall 2020? This version has a virus.

"Mom, is that offer to slap me into next year still on the table?"

Powerball is up to an 18 pack of Charmin.

Let's not tell some people when quarantine is over.

I've been trying to make hand sanitizer but it keeps coming out rum and Coke.

In-Line Splice -

For Connecting Two Hollow Braided Lines Together

Occasionally you will lose a bunch of braided line from your reel from a tangle or saw off or notice abrasion deep in the spool you want to cut out. The In-Line Splice is the perfect way to connect two hollow braided lines of the same or different tests or diameters. There are no good schematics for this connection so the best way to learn it is to watch one of the many videos available on the web and practice.

CALLING ALL COOKS

HOW ABOUT SMOKING...FISH THAT IS?

I am a great fan of smoked things, especially fish. I was introduced to a device called the Cameron Stove Top Smoker while in culinary school. It costs less than $50 and it will last a life-time. They smoked all sorts of things, chicken breasts, trout, cheese, dough, ribs... you name it, they smoked it. This is not a commercial for Cameron's. I happen to like and use their product. Stainless steel throughout. I use it on the side burner of my BBQ. At school they used it on a commercial stove top burner. The trick is to use the lowest flame while smoking. But, I am getting ahead of myself. Here is where to begin...with the fish. I use fillets. Whole fish that will fit in the smoker are fine. My favorite is Sierra. It is moist, takes smoke well and is absolutely delicious. Trout, Tuna, Yellowtail, Mackereel. These are all fish with a higher oil content. If you do not mind it being a bit dry, try any kind of fish or shell fish. I have had shrimp and scallops smoked and both were good. Scallops more so than shrimp.

We are going to start by brining the fish in a solution of 2/3 cup each of salt and sugar dissolved in 2 quarts of water. Use any salt or sugar. Substitute apple juice or cider for part of the water. Add anything in lieu of some of the water to impart a desired flavor. Let the fish soak for two hours under refrigeration or add some ice to the brine. After brining, blot the fish dry and place on a rack UNCOVERED in the refrigerator overnight so that the fish begins to dry. The smoke will not stick to wet fish. I cut the fish into small serving size pieces so more of the surface gets smoked.

The smoker: A steel pan with a ridged bottom, holding a smaller pan with a rack. Sprinkle the bottom of the pan with a handful of the shredded wood that comes with the smoker. They give you 4 samples of oak, apple, alder and hickory. I favor alder. Do not use more than a scant handful scattered over entire bottom of the pan. Lay the fish on the rack, not touching another piece of fish and place the pan with the rack into the larger pan. Slide on the cover. Leave it open a half-inch.

The Fire: Turn on your burner to high. Place the pan with the cover open a half-inch over the flame. When there is smoke coming from the opening, immediately turn the flame to the lowest possible and close the lid tightly. Walk away, set the timer for 20 minutes. Yes, I said 20 minutes. Take it off the flame and set it aside for 25 minutes. NO PEEKING! Any fillet up to an inch will be done 45 minutes after you start. All burners are of different capacity and efficiency. Experiment.

If you have a fish or a piece of meat higher than the smoker with the top on, do not despair. Just leave off the top and use a sheet of heavy duty foil to form a tightly sealed dome. I told Jim O'Donnell about this and he cooked a tri tip roast the first night he had it and raved.

Chicken and meat that starts from raw should cook longer. Get out that thermometer.

Smoke a fish, have an adventure!

Adventure into the Eastern Sierras in search of Gold

By Mark Manculich

Well, this past weekend turned out spectacular and that is good as the Covid-19 monster cancelled our earlier in the year, spring fishing trip. First time we had missed the spring trip in over twenty years.

We departed Friday about noon for the long drive. Took a quick break in Big Pine, headed down to the Owens. One of our favorite spots was taken, so I took a look under the bridge and viewed a nice school of fish. Usually these schools are carp or suckers and a waste of time, but with the lack of light, could not tell what they were. So I floated some bait by them, and on the third pass, much to my surprise, I hauled in a healthy 14" Rainbow. I passed along to my friend Steve, how I caught it, and let him have a go at them. Not long after, he landed a fat 17" rainbow. Beautiful colors on both.

After spending the evening in Bishop, knowing that Steve likes to sleep in, I headed down East Line Street to the Owens once again. In the course of an hour, picked up three more healthy, colorful rainbows. The coloring was quite dark, and with red hues. Not sure why that was the case, but it was certainly a great way to start off the day.

After breakfast we were on our way to the off-road destination in our Jeeps. Heading West out of Bishop, up Coyote Creek. For those that are familiar, this route is nearly parallel with the paved road that heads up to Lakes Sabrina, Intake Two, North and South Lake. After 22 miles, two- and one-half hours, of rough road, mud, and climbs we arrived at our campsite. After setting up camp, we went exploring and found a nice meadow with a meandering stream. This stream held Brook Trout, some of them hybrid with Golden Trout. These Brookies were holding the par marks of the Golden. After we both limited on these little fellas, it was back to camp for dinner, a campfire, and a few beers.

The next morning after enjoying fresh hot breakfast burritos we packed up for what would seem a moderate hike, however, the altitude at over ten thousand feet can really be a bear. We got to the undisclosed lake. The Golden Trout were visible in the clear water, of course they were visible the prior year, but failed to bite. This year, we were employing a new bait, crickets. Using my Tenkara rod, it took a while, but, I finally caught one, and got it's photo before releasing it. All fish were released on this trip. After catching five on crickets, thought I would try small worms, easier to get on the hook, and keep it on. Bam! Another Golden on the line. This is when I decided to use a small lure on my spinning rod/reel. Bam, bam! Wow, every thing is working this year. Most of the fellas caught were under seven inches in length, however, larger ones were seen following my lure. They became a very elusive target. In the end, we both caught limits, great for Steve, as it was his birthday.

Early Monday morning before packing up for the trip home, I managed to catch another limit of Brook Trout. Great company, weather, food and drink, off-roading, on top of the best fishing, could not have been a better trip!

ANNUAL AWARDS BANQUET

Avoid Casting Accidents

By Larry Brown

Safety is extremely important on every sport boat. We will have safety and tackle seminars and you will hear the captain and crew members explain the correct way to cast a bait, jig or bomb. Please don't think because you have been fishing for 30 years the advice and teaching does not apply to you. I see many experienced anglers turn their head away from the jig or baited hook during their cast and/or not yell a warning to other anglers, such as "going out, casting, heads up." Sharp hooks, rocking boats and unaware or careless anglers are a very dangerous combination. If everybody follows the safe casting practices we can avoid serious injuries. If one angler hooks another it may end the trip for all of us. So, when casting please ALWAYS;

1. Look around deliberately to assure a crew member or fellow angler is not in or walking towards the path your hook will be launched.
2. Give a "LOUD" call out, "casting, low bridge or going out" before you start your cast.
3. Make sure your shout has been heard and acknowledged by anglers or crew members immediately in or approaching your casting radius.

4. Never take your eyes off your jig or hooked bait. This means your head will be facing backwards, AWAY FROM THE WATER, until the jig or bait has passed over the rail. You will never miss the water.

Two other important safety habits:

1. After your fish is gaffed, immediately put your reel in free spool and point your rod straight up to the sky. Do not have any tension on your line and follow your gaffed fish to the back of the boat still with your rod tip pointed up. This will avoid poking eyes out and having a hook under tension rip out of the fish and hook an angler or crew member.
2. When storing your rod in your designated rod holders along the side of the boat secure your hooks and jigs in back of your reel to avoid hooking anglers and crew members in the arms as they walk or run up and down the side of the boat or hand if they reach out to stabilize themselves when conditions are rocky.. Shit does happen but this shit is totally avoidable. Make a commitment to being safe.

Biting Bass

By Joel Steinman

I was fishing with Dan Tropeda on Castiac last Tuesday from the trip I bought at the banquet.

I managed 5 small mouth bass, 1 stripe bass and 9 large mouth bass.

It was great getting out.

"Bass bass bass at Castaic Lake yesterday! I finally caught one after all these years, Jim caught 7 large mouth and Ian caught a small mouth bass!!!! It was a fun afternoon to see how the boat runs and hope to catch a fish. Jim was teaching Kevin where to go to fish and how to maneuver the boat along the shore."
